All Should Full Together.

The advancement of the city's interests in any direction is the objective toward which all good citizens should strive as such advancement inevitably reacts beneficially on each individual, and it is on the basis of our mutual purpose along these lines, that I desire to meet the citizens. I cannot see how such a series of conferences can fail to be of benefit, as we plan to make the meetings just as informal and sociable as we possibly ean. It will give the citizens in each precinct a chance to explain the needs peculiar to their own section and we are sure to receive many valuable suggestions that would otherwise escape our attention.
